

Hamed Ovaisi

Associate Solicitor, Commercial Law Services

Hamed joined the firm's Commercial Department in April 2011. He studied at the University of London gaining a 2:1 law degree from Queen Mary's and then an MA in Legal and Political Theory from UCL. As part of his degree he spent a year at the Katholieke Universitat Leuven in Belgium studying International Business Law for which he was awarded First-Class Honours.

Away from the office Hamed is a keen footballer and has played at a senior level for many local clubs, in addition to which he enjoys cooking, culture and travel.

Having grown up in a family business environment in Eastbourne, Hamed brings a commercial approach to his role as a lawyer, which has resulted in a loyal following amongst the business community in Eastbourne and beyond.

Specialisms:

- Commercial Property.
- Landlord and Tenant (including Lease Extensions and Enfranchisement).
- Asset based Business Sales and Purchases.