

Joanne Oliver

Senior Associate Solicitor, Employment Law Services

Jo joined the firm in 2003 after obtaining a law degree from the University of Westminster and completing the academic stage of her legal training at the College of Law in London where she received a commendation. After completing her training contract, Jo qualified as a solicitor in March 2007. She specialises in all aspects of employment law and routinely advises employers on staffing matters such as:

- Business re-organisations.
- Redundancies.
- Disciplinary issues.
- Resolving grievances.
- Absence management.
- Varying terms of employment.
- Sponsorship of overseas workers.
- Preventing discrimination.
- Maternity/paternity rights.
- Tackling underperformance.
- Employment Tribunal claims.
- The employment aspects of buying and selling a business.

She has a reputation for achieving excellent results for her clients and for providing clear, consistent and commercially-aware advice in an approachable and straightforward fashion.

Jo is a trustee of a local Women's Refuge and in her free time she enjoys travel, particularly to countries in the Far East.
